Certification and Accreditation; and Continuous Monitoring

The Federal Information Security Management Act (FISMA) of 2002 requires that all U.S. Federal agencies certify and accredit (C&A) all information systems and major applications that are put into production on U.S. government networks. COACT's C&A Services Group has proven expertise in helping U.S. Federal agencies comply with FISMA and improve their security posture.

Whether your agency requires assistance in setting up a C&A program, enhancing the program you already have, certifying new information systems, validating new C&A packages, or establishing a continuous monitoring program, COACT can help.

COACT's commitment to quality, awareness of government cost constraints, and attention to customer needs differentiate them from the C&A crowd.
